

CHURCHILL IS APPOINTED TO CABINET BY BALDWIN

Appointment Creates Sensation Among Conservatives

LIST ANNOUNCED

Nineteen Members To Comprise New Cabinet

(Reuter's Service)
London, Nov. 6.—The following is an official list of all the members of the new Cabinet:—
Mr. Stanley Baldwin, Premier and Leader of the House of Commons.
Earl Birkenhead, Secretary of State for India.
Mr. Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer.
Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.
Marquess of Salisbury, Lord Privy Seal.
Marquess Curzon, Lord President of the Council and Leader of the House of Lords.
Viscount Cave, Lord Chancellor.
Sir W. Joynson-Hicks, Secretary of State for Home Affairs.
Sir L. Worthington-Evans, Secretary of State for War.
Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for the Air.
Mr. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty.
Sir P. Lloyd-Greaves, President of the Board of Trade.
Mr. Neville Chamberlain, President of the Ministry of Health.
Mr. E. F. L. Wood, President of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries.
Sir John Gilmour, Secretary for Scotland.
Lord Eustace Percy, President of the Board of Education.
Sir A. Steel-Maitland, Minister of Labor.
Sir Douglas Hogg, Attorney General.
Mr. L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

(Reuter's Service)
London, Nov. 6.—It is understood that the nineteen appointments published comprise the Cabinet.
The under secretarieships and other offices will probably be announced tomorrow.
Mr. Churchill's appointment has created a sensation in political circles and despite the fact that Mr. Austen Chamberlain has been appointed Deputy Leader of the House of Commons, the Chancellor of the Exchequer's proximity to the Premier has badly impressed die-hard Conservatives.
Sir Robert Horne declined office owing to the binding character of his city connections.

Junior Officers Of Ship Involved In Brazil Mutiny

(Reuter's Service)
London, November 6.—According to official information received in London from Rio de Janeiro, the junior officers of the warship, Sao Paulo, revolted on November 4 and put to sea with the intention of relieving the political prisoners incarcerated on an island. A fort fired on the battleship and a short engagement ensued, apparently without result.
The report adds that the general situation is well in hand and that complete reliance is placed on the rest of the navy and army.

Filipino Leaders Satisfied With Elections In U.S.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Manila, Nov. 7.—Filipino leaders and the press express satisfaction or are non-committal in connection with the Republican victory. There are no hostile utterances. It is believed that they will now work here and in Washington for the adoption of the Fairfield Bill granting a native governor and complete independence after 25 years.

Chinese Delegate Draws Down Wrath Of All With Speech At Opium Parley

British Representative At Geneva Conference Voices Serious Indictment Of China's Attitude; Extra-territorial Issue Not Germane, He Claims

(Reuter's Service)
Geneva, Nov. 6.—The atmosphere at the Opium Conference was again ruffled today owing to Dr. Sze's criticisms of other states with regard to restriction of poppy-growing.
The Portuguese delegate lodged a strong protest against Dr. Sze's remarks in regard to the treatment by the Macao authorities of the question, declaring that Portugal required advice from nowhere, Portugal was acting in the interests of humanity and in the better and spirit of the Hague Convention.
The French delegate, M. Chinchant, resented Dr. Sze's assertion that the smuggling of opium in Indo-China showed the incompetence of the French authorities to prevent armed bands of smugglers from entering their territory.
M. Chinchant declared that he could not accept criticism from any power, much less China, whose government, he asserted, possessed only normal authority in certain parts of the country. It was extraordinary, he continued, that the representative of a country producing 15,000 tons of opium annually should reproach Indo-China, where poppy-growing was strictly prohibited.
Dr. Sze declared that China desired to restrict poppy-growing and hoped that neighboring states would second her efforts.

CHI HSIEH-YUAN LEAVES CHENGJU FOR NANKING

Holds Conference With Local Officials Before Departing For Capital

(Eastern News Agency)
Nanking, Nov. 7.—General Chi Hsieh-yuan returned to Nanking today at 1 p.m.
Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan left Chengju for Nanking yesterday morning at 5 o'clock by a special train. The sudden change in the political situation in Anhui is said to be the cause of the decision of the Kiangsu general to go back to his capital.
Before his departure, he called a conference at the Chinese University in Chengju which was attended by Commissioner of Foreign Affairs S. W. Wen, Chief of Police Wang Kuo-ping and Taoyin Liu Chien of Shanghai. In a short speech, the Kiangsu marshal stated that he had proposed to come to Shanghai to express his regret in having to resort to war in order to rescue the Shanghai-Sungkiang area from an alien and rebellious province, but the press of work in Nanking had obliged him to abandon his trip and he was compelled to return to his headquarters immediately.
The local officials remained in Chengju long enough to see General Chi's train pull out of the Chengju station.
Meanwhile, conflicting reports have come from Anhui, following the cutting of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway on Wednesday. One report says that Tui Ma Lien-chia has declared his allegiance with Marshal Tuan Chi-jui and will defy Chi if the latter propose to reinforce Wu Pei-fu, while another says that a group of pro-Anfu generals, including Nieh Shao-yung, Kao Shih-tu and Li Chuan-gho, have declared their independence from Ma and are marching upon the provincial capital. Consequently, Ma has appealed to Chi for aid and the latter has returned to Nanking to reinforce Ma.
The Shanghai-Woosung Railway was wholly blocked yesterday as a result of the wrecking of a section of the railway at Kiangwan and the overturning of a number of cars. The remainder of the tenth division, about 5,000 strong, remained in Kiangwan yesterday with no indication of an early departure.
In response to the request of the local public organizations, advocating the withdrawal of all forces from Shanghai and neighborhood, Marshal Chi has telegraphed to say that the movement could not be carried out now in view of the recent acquisition of Shanghai by Kiangsu and Shanghai's exposure to naval attacks at present. But he said that he would give the matter his careful consideration with the view to carrying out the suggestion at a future date.

General Stoppage Of Work On Waterfront Looms As Result Of Dispute

(Reuter's Service)
Melbourne, November 6.—A general stoppage of waterfront work throughout Australia is threatened as the result of the seamen here declining to provide steam for the cranes and donkey-engines for wharf laborers working overtime.

COMMUNISTS AT REVAL WILL BE TRIED NOV. 10

Jail-Break Plot Discovered; Two More Sentenced To Death

(Reuter's Service)
Reval, November 6.—The trial of 159 Communists, on a charge of plotting a coup d'etat, will begin on November 10.
Two men were discovered last evening piercing a hole in the wall of the prison. They fired upon the police but were arrested after an exchange of shots. They confessed that they were hired by a secret Communist organization to attempt to rescue the prisoners.
Both of them were court-martialed and sentenced to death.

MARSHAL SUN DECIDES TO HOLD ARSENAL FOR SUPPLIES

Asserts Army Equipment Needs Replenishing After War

HUPEH FRIENDLY

Says Chang Yung-ming And Himself Are On Good Terms

Advices have been received here that Marshal Sun Chuan-fang of Hangchow has received word that conditions are very much disturbed in Fukien Province and that he will probably find it necessary to return there shortly.
Hangchow is quiet, the Marshal has been well received by the people and everything is satisfactory. During the last two years Marshal Sun has received a great deal of help from Marshal Wu Pei-fu, they are natives of the same town in Shantung and, in response to the many telegrams despatched to him by Marshal Wu, Marshal Sun sent the 10th Mixed Brigade from Chekiang to Shanghai and then by train to Nanking to help Marshal Wu.
Upon arrival of these troops in Nanking they were informed that the Governor of Shantung Province, Tseng Shih-chi, had adopted a neutral attitude and in line with this policy had cut the Tientsin-Pukow line in two places one near the northern boundary to prevent troops from the neighborhood of Tientsin coming south and the other place near Hsuehchow to prevent Kiangsu troops proceeding North.
In view of this situation the 10th Mixed Brigade was ordered to return and are now quartered in the vicinity of the Kiangwan arsenal. It is a well known fact that General Chang Yung-ming served in Hangchow years ago under Marshal Sun and they are on very good terms. Including Chang Yung-ming's troops, which are considered friendly to Sun, Sun has under his control at the Arsenal, Lungwa, Yamen, Kiangwan Dock and the Footing ammunition magazine, some 20,000 troops. The 10th Mixed Brigade will be kept in Shanghai for the time being as Marshal Sun states that the Kiangsu forces guarding Shanghai have recently been increased to 20,000. Counting the additional 10,000 Chekiang troops at Kiangwan Race Course Shanghai apparently has 50,000 troops to take care of its future.

Economic And Political Center Is Shifting To Pacific, Says Dr. Ross

Noted Publicist, In Article Published At Berlin, Stresses Importance Of Singapore Base; Control Of Malacca Straits Imperative

(Reuter's Service)
Berlin, Nov. 6.—In the course of an article in the Vossische Zeitung, Dr. Collin Ross, the well-known publicist, who has just returned from a lengthy visit to the East, expresses the opinion that the economic and political center of gravity in the world is moving from the Atlantic towards the Pacific.
He observes that while America controls the Panama Canal and the western entry to it, it is possible for a military and naval power based on the Malacca Straits to block the eastern entry and thus exercise a decisive influence on the affairs of the Pacific.
He emphasizes the importance of the Singapore Base. In this respect he says that the Labor Government's rejection of the scheme contributed more than it knew to its downfall. He is of the opinion that one of the first acts of the Conservative Government will be to proceed with the scheme.
Dr. Ross says in his article that he thinks the above facts have largely influenced the British attitude towards the execution of the Dawes Report, as the consolidation of the situation in Europe is essential to any British plan to detach the main body of her military and naval forces to India and the Pacific.

Chamber Of Commerce Receives Radio Message

PROTEST RAISED

Forces Are Already Outside Harbor, Report

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Chefoo, Nov. 5.—The Chinese Chamber of Commerce today received a wireless message from the gunboat Hai-chi to the effect that Marshal Wu Pei-fu intended to land in Chefoo with 15,000 troops. The chamber has sent him an urgent request to do so.
A Chinese report states that two warships and several transports are outside Chefoo awaiting an opportunity to land.

SAILS FROM TANGKU

(Eastern News Agency)
Tientsin, Nov. 7.—The Chinese man-of-war, Hai-chi, with Marshal Wu Pei-fu aboard, which has been at anchor off Tangku, is reported to have sailed for an unknown place last evening together with four transport vessels.

MAY BE AT TSINGTAO

(Eastern News Agency)
Hangchow, Nov. 6.—Inasmuch as the whereabouts of Marshal Wu Pei-fu are still unknown, General Hsiao Yao-nan, Inspector-General of Hupeh and Hunan, has telegraphed to various quarters, inquiring into his destination. It is however generally inferred in Wuchang that possibly Marshal Wu has taken refuge in the Chefoo, a Hupeh man-of-war, which is now at anchor in the port of Tangku.

THOSE MILITARY LEADERS IN WUCHANG, WHO BELONG TO MARSHAL WU'S FACTION, ARE REPORTED TO HAVE DETERMINED TO INVITE MARSHAL WU TO HUPEH WITH A VIEW TO HELPING HIM RESTORE HIS FORMER POWER WITH HUPEH AND HONAN PROVINCES AS THEIR BASE OF OPERATIONS.

Meanwhile, there have appeared many in Wuchang, who are now intriguing secretly to seize the positions of both Tsuchun and Civil Governor of Hupeh. It appears that they are gradually coming to be an influential factor.

Provincial Autonomy Is Only Course For China, Says Sir John Jordan

Nation Too Large And Problems Too Complex To Permit Of Rigid Control By A Central Authority, He Tells China Association At London

(Reuter's Service)
London, Nov. 6.—The annual dinner of the China Association was held this evening. Sir John Jordan presided. Among those present were the Earl of Onslow, the Marquess of Sligo, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Sir Frank Swettenham, Sir James Lockhart, Sir George Macdonogh, the Bishop of North China and the Bishop of Hongkong.
Sir John Jordan, referring in his speech to the Christian General's coup d'etat, described the Testament type of Christian. He declared that General Feng had never been a whole-hearted supporter of Marshal Wu Pei-fu's plan of unification by force, and expressed the opinion that Marshal Wu's idea was impracticable. Unity could only be attained by an arrangement giving the provinces a large share in the government of the country. China was too large and her problems too complex to admit of rigid control by a central authority.

The speaker considered foreigners partly responsible for the present trouble in China through the violation of the embargo on the import of arms. He suggested that the question should be submitted to the League of Nations.

Sir John found the railways the most discouraging feature of the situation in China. Instead of paying handsomely they were no longer national concerns but had become the preserves of provincial magnates and were threatening to become a curse instead of a blessing.

INFLUENCE OF RUSSIA

Referring to the influence of Russia, the speaker thought that a disquieting feature was the determined effort of M. Karakhan and a section of the younger Chinese to undermine the treaty rights of Britain and other Powers. He considered it impossible that M. Karakhan should participate in the deliberations of the Diplomatic Body in Peking. The Russian Treaty of 1924 and the treaties of the other Powers were as far apart as the poles, giving no common ground for deliberation.

Dealing with the renewal of British Crown leases in treaty ports, Sir John contended that the Imperial Government's decision in that connection ought to be reconsidered and the case submitted to arbitration or the courts.

Recalling the anxieties of the war, the speaker rejoiced that the position in the Far East was now likely to be strengthened by a naval base at Singapore. The Dominions in the southern hemisphere would never again be exposed to the risks of the late war.

STABILITY NEEDED

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, responding on behalf of the guests, joyfully referred to the mass of official papers regarding Crown leases. Though the conclusion reached had not been unfavorable to the holders, but equitable and just, he was of the opinion that if the decision were reconsidered in the spirit of equity and justice which distinguished all governments, he considered that what was wanted in China, as in Europe, was a government pledged to stability (cheers).

KAO EN-HUNG IS FORCED OUT BY SHANTUNG TULI

Tsingtao Governor Deprived Of Office; Destroyers Patrol Coast

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tsingtao, Nov. 5. (Delayed).—There was almost a panic here today resulting from recurring reports that Marshal Wu Pei-fu would land at Shatzekow, which is twenty miles from Tsingtao.
General Chen, the Tuli of Shantung, acted instantly. He appointed General Wang Han-chang Administrator of Martial Law and Defence Commissioner, supplanting Mr. Kao En-hung as Governor of Tsingtao. He also detained Mr. Shao Heng-chun, the Managing Director of the Kiaotai Railway, and Mr. Chang, the Chief of Police, in their own homes under guard. The three named are regarded as Marshal Wu Pei-fu's sympathizers.

Mr. Hsueh Ping-chi, Civil Governor of Shantung, is reported to have abandoned his post and fled from Tsinanfu.

Destroyers are patrolling the coast, but they have reported no sign of the ships carrying Marshal Wu and his troops.

The consular body has received a report that Marshal Wu landed at Lungkow but afterwards sailed again. It is believed that he has headed for Haichow.

Baldwin Opposed To Program Of Reaction

(Reuter's Service)
London, November 6.—Sir W. Joynson-Hicks, presiding at the Council of the Primrose League, said that he knew that Mr. Baldwin was determined that there should be no reaction in the policy of the Conservative Party. He declared that Mr. Baldwin intended to proceed with a policy of social reform and would carry out the pledges he had given to the people.

Chang Wants Tientsin And Shantung, Report

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, Nov. 7.—A mandate issued yesterday night states that all mandates issued between July, 1920 (Chihli-Anfu War) and the second instance, with the object of depriving officials of their rank and decorations owing to political changes, are now declared null and void.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Nov. 6.—The vanguard of the Fengtien troops, 3,000 strong, today proceeded towards Machang where it is reported remnants of the Chihli forces are being concentrated. It is expected, therefore, that there will be a clash momentarily between the opposing combatants.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Nov. 6.—It is learned on good authority that, taking into consideration the close relations between Manchuria and Shantung, Marshal Chang Tso-lin intends, with a view to placing Shantung under his control, to station in the districts of Tientsin and Tsinan the Fengtien troops under the command of General Chang Hsueh-liang and General Chiang Tung-huan. Resident General of Mongolia and Suiyuan Armies besides detaching General Chang Tso-hsiang's forces in the region of Shanhaikwan.

In the meantime, it appears that General Feng Yu-hsiang contemplates securing his sphere of influence in the district along the Kin-han line, for he has detailed his troops in the districts between Tientsin and Peking and between Peking and Pootungfu.

It is inferred that the "Christian General" also will station his forces in Honan Province.

It is understood that the Shanai troops and General Sun Yo's forces will be posted in the region between Pootungfu and the Yellow River and that the district south of the Yellow River will be defended by the troops commanded by General Hu Ching-i.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, Nov. 7.—Mr. Huang Fu, who holds three posts, namely, acting Premier, Minister of Education, and Minister of Communications, has now decided to give the post of Minister of Education to another person.

At today's cabinet meeting, it was decided to appoint Mr. Yi Tsai-chi as the successor, to relieve Mr. Li Chi-chien from his post as Civil Governor of Honan and to appoint Mr. Wang Ying-chuan as the successor.

FLAGS ARE FLOWN

(Eastern News Agency)
Peking, Nov. 6.—The Chinese national flag is seen today at the gates of every house throughout the capital, the ostensible reason being that the citizens are celebrating the entry into Peking of Marshal Tuan Chi-jui. But it is understood that in reality they have been ordered by the authorities concerned to put out the flag in order to celebrate the abolition of the title of the Emperor and the withdrawal of the Imperial Family from the Palace with the conception that the foundation of the Republic of China will be more strengthened than ever.

ASK TUAN TO COME

(Eastern News Agency)
Peking, Nov. 6.—Several messengers have already been sent to Tientsin on a mission to induce Marshal Tuan Chi-jui to come to Peking.

According to one of the secretaries to the Cabinet, however, it will take some time before Marshal Tuan will definitely decide upon his entry into the capital.

COMPROMISE IS WORKED OUT AT INDIAN PARLEY

Cooperation Between All Is Urged in Statement At Close Of Meeting

(Reuter's Service)
Calcutta, Nov. 6.—The conference between the Swarajists and Mr. Gandhi concluded today in a compromise.

The views of the conference are contained in a published statement to the effect that, as the policy of repression initiated by the Bengal Government with the sanction of the Viceroy was designed not against any party advocating violence but against the Swarajists, cooperation between all parties is necessary.

It was decided that the Congress shall suspend their program of non-cooperation except as far as it relates to the refusal to wear foreign cloth, and, secondly, that the Swarajists shall carry on the work of the central provincial legislatures on behalf of the Congress.

Other points refer to the removal of the untouchability of the question of Hindu-Muslim unity and the hand-spinning by each Congressman of a certain quantity of kaddar. The last is a severely modified form of the principal points of the old triple boycott of early non-cooperation days.

Marshal Wu Picks Chefoo As Port Of Landing His Troops

GOING TO HANKOW?

(Reuter's News Agency)
Hankow, Nov. 6.—Rumor is afloat that Marshal Wu Pei-fu is now on his way to Hankow. Judging from the fact that of the present Hupeh troops, those which belong to Marshal Wu's faction total no more than three mixed brigades, it seems doubtful whether these brigades will actually rise in arms for Marshal Wu, especially in view of his adverse circumstances.

REACH AGREEMENT

(Eastern News Agency)
Peking, November 7.—Advice received here today from Chefoo report that Marshal Wu Pei-fu today at 7 a.m. arrived off Chefoo aboard a Chinese man-of-war accompanied by four transport vessels and that he is still remaining on board the warship. It is further reported that two American men-of-war also arrived at Chefoo about the same time as Marshal Wu's warship and the transport vessels and that a party of marines were landed by the American warships and are now on the guard there.

Next Time Sung Will Recognise Toothpowder Brand

Sung Tui-foo, 306 Tongshan Road, said it was toothpowder an Italian merchant sailor had given him and instructed him to wait at Garden Bridge. The Sikh policeman, seeing a bulge in Sung's pocket, figured it something beside toothpowder, even to the extent of morphine. The Mixed Court yesterday agreed with the Sikh and Sung was told to pay a fine of $100 or look at the four walls of the jail for six weeks. The morphine, three pounds of it, was sent to the laboratories for a look-see.

Fiction Of Scandinavia Subject Of Lecture At American Women's Club

Mrs. J. W. Brown, well-known in Shanghai for her poetry, which has been published in recent numbers of "The China Journal of Science and Arts," and for her fiction contribution to the volume of short stories recently published here by the Shanghai Short Story Club, was the speaker at the meeting of the Library and Literary Department of the A.W.C. yesterday afternoon.

"Modern Scandinavian Fiction" was the title of Mrs. Brown's interesting lecture which discussed the modern trend of the literature of these northern countries, the biographies and personalities of some of the leading Scandinavian writers, and the various influences responsible for the superior literature of Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

"In considering the literature of a country," said Mrs. Brown, "it is imperative that some insight into its geography and history be gained, for it is impossible to arrive at an understanding with considering these essential influences."

SCANDINAVIA APART

There are two geographical features which set Scandinavia off from the rest of Europe. One is its physical isolation, and the other is its climate. Norway, Sweden and Denmark are countries in which Nature still holds a threat over the people. They are countries of long, dreary winters wrapped in a darkness that must sleep into the very souls of the people, contrasted with the physical aspects of life, all gaiety, all blossoming. They are countries in which life, for the peasant, is stark and dreary, a long winter that bursts now and then into sudden summer, brief, beautiful and soon to be relinquished. These dark winters seem to have bred in all these peoples, and more especially in the Norwegian, a sort of dumb endurance; an occupation with the physical aspects of life, an absence of gaiety that seems at times almost Russian in its intensity. There is a stern truthfulness about them too, as of a people who do not deal in illusions. To the Anglo-Saxon mind there is at times something almost revolting in their utter absence of cant, the frank animosity of the lower classes.

The independence, the indefatigable industry, the wild untameableness of these people has produced a literature that stands out as clearly the result of their racial inheritance. The existence of Ibsen and Ellen Key alone would indicate the clear quality of their thought.

SEIMA LAGERLOF
In discussing the Scandinavian authors, Mrs. Brown spoke first of Selma Lagerlof, the Swedish woman who won the Nobel prize for literature. Her "Gosta Berling" is counted the best piece of fiction that has come Instructions for Sun's army to remove, if he does there will be fighting. Although outwardly there is peace, the true inner conditions are not known to the public as regards the present Kiangsu-Chekiang relations.

If Marshal Sun did not come over from Fukien then Kiangsu troops would have been defeated, according to the Fukien men. Marshal Sun does not like to interfere with political matters in Shanghai, but he does want to look after the Arsenal temporarily because this belongs to the Central Government.

The additional Kiangsu troops about which Marshal Sun is complaining are stationed in the vicinity of St. Catharine Bridge, across the creek from the French Concession.

American Efforts In Europe Lauded By Earl Of Balfour

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 6.—At a dinner in honor of Mr. Owen D. Young, late Agent-General of Reparations, at the Claridge Hotel given by Sir Robert Kindersley, the Earl of Balfour, proposing Mr. Young's health, alluded to the disinterested and arduous labors of Americans to bear their share of the common post-war burden. The Earl of Balfour said that he had long felt that the world's future largely depended on the manner in which the two great English-speaking peoples were able to cooperate. He declared that it was impossible that Americans should separate themselves from the fate of other nations brought up approximately in the same conditions. After a witty defence of capitalism, the speaker contended that it was on the manner in which the power of capital was used that its future depended. He expressed the opinion that no task was more advantageous than that in which Mr. Young had so brilliantly taken part.

Ladies' Auxiliary, C.M.S., Holds First Meeting Of Season

Mr. J. T. Pratt, C.M.B., J.B.M., Acting Consul-General and Mrs. Pratt were hosts yesterday afternoon at the British Consulate

General to the Shanghai Ladies' Auxiliary Association of the Church Mission Society on the occasion of its first meeting of the season. A record number were in attendance.

Dean Symons in opening the meeting spoke of the activities of the auxiliary during the four years of its existence in his introduction to the program of the afternoon. He then called upon Major Hsu, who had been in China during the last war, in 1900 as a member of H. B. M. forces and had later returned, on being retired from the army, as a member of the Church Mission Society.

Major Hsu told of his early experiences in China with the British army, and contrasted the life of a score of years ago in the vicinity of Shanghai with that of the present. Miss I. M. Hughes, of St. Catherine's School in Nanking, was the most speaker and expressed the thanks of the auxiliary for the donation by the auxiliary, which had made possible the construction of a new dining room and kitchen. Mrs. G. E. Tucker, President of the auxiliary, gave a concise summary of its work and objects and closed by expressing the thanks of the organization to the speakers and to Mr. and Mrs. Pratt.

YUNNANESE TO LEAVE CANTON FOR HOME SOON

Mercenaries To Be Returned To Native Provinces In Near Future

(Eastern News Agency)
Canton, Nov. 7.—It has been definitely decided that the Yunnan mercenaries commanded by General Fan Shih-sheng and Kwansei troops under the command of General Lin Chen-huan will shortly return to their respective provinces.
They are now making preparations, commandeering native troops. It is reported that Dr. Fan has given his pledge to General Lin Chen-huan that the latter will be appointed Civil Governor of Kwangsi. The fact, however, that General Fan Shih-sheng has already left for Wu-chow alone is being held with apprehension by the public here at view of his past relations with the Canton Government.

Theosophical Society Hears Horne Lecture

At last Thursday's lecture at the Shanghai Lodge of the Theosophical Society, Mr. A. Horne gave a talk on the "Occult Brotherhood," tracing the subject to the earliest times when organisations of an occult nature were known to exist.

In Egypt, the lecturer said, the highest knowledge of the land was kept within the sanctuaries of the temples, and the priesthood there formed a kind of esoteric body in which, through successive initiations, the aspirant was taken through the various degrees of spiritual enlightenment. Here, also, the Hermetic science had its commencement, traditions of which have come down to us at the present day.
According to the theory now developed, this occult brotherhood, having its headquarters in Tibet and ramifications in every quarter of the globe, is the central core of all the Orders and occult bodies.

Four Trans-Pacific Ships Here Nov. 22

Saturday, November 22, promises to be a busy day at the Central, Lower and Eastern Wharves with four trans-Pacific liners arriving in Shanghai that morning.

The Pacific Mail Steamship company will have two vessels in, the President Cleveland and the President Lincoln. The Canadian Pacific's Empress of Russia will be enroute to Vancouver. And the President Jackson of the Admiral Oriental Line will be here, enroute to Hongkong and Manila.

Settlements Mean Nothing To This Man

Yeung Ah-kung just will not stay out of the foreign settlement. It was brought out in the Mixed Court yesterday. He was arrested this week for stealing a large jacket from a house on Wangse Road. He was found guilty although he denied the charge. He was given a year in jail, to be expelled again when released. The court found he had had 11 previous convictions and nearly that many expulsions from the record.

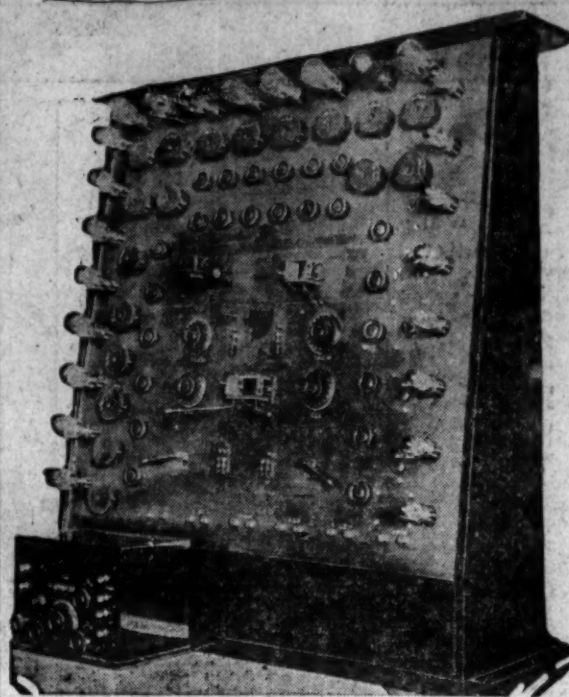

Are there two kinds of men in the world? Or are men all alike? Make up your mind to find out.

But how?

Government of Burma, described the regulations in Burma. He entirely associated himself with the French delegate's opinion that the remedy was restriction of poppy-growing. Three and a half thousand kilos of opium had been seized annually on the Chinese frontier in the last three years.

Dr. Sze inquired as to the nationality of the smugglers, the quantity smuggled and the country of origin.

The Chinese delegate congratulated Japan on the success of her efforts to reduce opium-smoking in Formosa and added that what Japan had done other powers could do in their territories.

A SERIOUS INDICTMENT

Replying to Dr. Sze, Sir J. Campbell declared that no opium from any native Indian state could find its way to China. As compared with China, Indian production of opium was only a drop in the ocean.

Later—Following this morning's incidents at the Opium Conference, Sir Malcolm Delevingne at this afternoon's sitting spoke, expressing disappointment at Dr. Sze's statement.

The British delegate, in a serious indictment of China's attitude, which made a strong impression on the conference, said that there had been no change in the Chinese Delegation's attitude towards the important question of the cultivation of poppy. The Chinese Delegation, he said, was making the same speeches it had been uttering for three years. He reminded the conference that China produced the bulk of the world's opium and yet in 1922 she had forwarded a report to the Secretariat of the League asserting that cultivation of poppy had ceased. He produced eloquent figures showing the quantities of opium seized in Hongkong and Malaya.

Alluding to the Chinese contention that China had no control over individuals benefiting from extraterritorial rights, Sir Malcolm asked what had to do with restriction of poppy cultivation, which was the question before the Conference.

The speaker expressed the hope that Dr. Sze's speech yesterday would not be his last word. Otherwise the conference would be absolutely futile.

ADJOURNMENT TAKEN

Sir Malcolm referred to the Chinese obstructiveness and added that the Chinese Delegation did not seem to realise the present situation. The point was that the Chinese production of opium was the dominating factor in the Far East.

The British delegate concluded by saying that China had all their sympathies in the present disorders.

Dr. Sze then rose, announcing that he would reserve his reply till a later stage.

Sir Malcolm Delevingne thereupon proposed an adjournment of the Conference in order to enable the committee of four, which had been appointed, to investigate the question and get to work. His motion was agreed on.

Aged Chinese Found Brutally Murdered

Police of the Wayside station are investigating the death of an elderly Chinese, whose mutilated body was found on a vacant lot off Yochow Road at Point Road, near the Settlement boundary.

The body was discovered at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The man's head was badly slashed in several places and was covered with blood. The condition of the body indicated that he had been murdered, his assailant apparently having used a heavy knife or chopper. The crime is believed to have been committed some time during the night or early morning.

The man was poorly dressed and was supposedly of the coolie class. Efforts at identification have so far proved fruitless. The body was ordered removed to the Public Mortuary by Detective Sub-Inspector MacDermott, who is conducting the inquiry for the police.

John Barrymore

WE present—
The insolent, the infinitely witty, the superbly handsome, most picturesque figure in the social history of England—

The man who went furthest in impressing his stamp on the sartorial styles and customs of his fellow men!

Beau Brummel!

Yes, the Beau who was dandy, arbiter of fashions, and wrecker of fair ladies' hearts.

He comes here in the screen adaptation of the famous Clyde Fitch play—the same play immortalized by Richard Mansfield.

John Barrymore, a superb figure himself, was chosen to play the title role in this splendid Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen. He plays the role of the Beau who attracted attention by his insolence and held it by his scandal.

Don't miss seeing this! Impersonation of a great personality who insulted princes, had three hairdressers at one time to fix his hair, fought off the army of admiring women after bits of his heart, had the soles of his shoes polished, who became a dandy because of a broken heart.

A great cast supports the one and only Barrymore. Here are the impressive names: Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers, William Humphreys, Richard Tucker, Andre de Beranger, Claire de Lorez, Michael Dark, Templar Saxe and others.

A great star, agree to play, a great cast!
This is more than a picture—it's an event!

SAFE MAJORITY IS GIVEN G.O.P. IN LOWER HOUSE

Control Of Senate Is Still In Doubt Because Of The La Follette Group

(Reuter's American Service)
Washington, Nov. 7.—The wave of Republican support for President Coolidge has swept a safe Republican majority into the House of Representatives, where the Republican strength has increased by 21, and is now 25 over the number necessary for a majority in the Senate.

However, the Republicans have only increased their representation in the Senate from a bare 48 to 52. As Senator La Follette and at least three of his supporters are included in this number, they (i.e. the Republicans) have to win one of the two outstanding contests in Minnesota and New Mexico, and all the vacancy in Connecticut in the special election next month, arising out of the death of Senator Brandegee, in order to secure a working majority.

PLANES FASTER, OXEN MORE FUN, SAYS PIONEER

Flying All Right, But Not In It With Team, Says Ezra Meeker

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 4.—This here airplane business is all right, but it ain't in it with a bull team," was the comment made here today by Ezra Meeker, blazer of the Oregon trail, as he alighted from an airplane in which he made the trip from Puget Sound to Dayton to attend the international air contests.

"The airplane goes faster, but it ain't in it for run with an ox team," continued the old fellow. Meeker is ninety-four year old. This is his first airplane trip of any length, according to Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly, U.S.A., who piloted the flying machine.

"It was just seventy-two years ago that I crossed the Missouri at Omaha and started for the Oregon country," said Meeker. "It took me six months to get to Puget Sound. And I made the return trip to Omaha in just fifteen hours flying time. And you bet it was flying.

TWO MONTHS THEN, THREE HOURS NOW

"But it wasn't in it with the old ox team. Fun? Way, these flying fellows don't know what fun is. Now they just tie a fellow in this little coop and away he goes. But in those other days, why, a fellow could sometimes climb in and ride a ways when the ground was level. And yesterday I passed over, in three hours, what took me two months to travel by bull team. Why, I actually saw the place, from away up in the air, where we rounded up our ox team and we men went buffalo hunting. That was where the Loup River flows into the Platte. I asked Lieutenant Kelly to point it out to me when we got there, and he did. But it didn't look natural.

"And Indians? I couldn't see an Indian at all, but coming on to the mountains in Wyoming I saw a place where we had a skirmish with them fifty-two years ago. Of course, I wouldn't have been able to pick it out, but Lieutenant Kelly located it for me from his maps.

"All day as we flew along, I could locate the old Oregon trail across the prairies by following, with my eye, the Union Pacific Railroad tracks.

"And just think when I went over it first time there wasn't even a wagon track most of the way. It was just unbroken prairie. We followed the river, three months and that took us 600 miles into Wyoming. Yesterday we followed that river back again and it took us three or four hours.

GETTING FASTER EVERY TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

"Fifty-two years ago we thought there never would be a better, nor quicker way of crossing the prairies and mountains than by bull team. It took six months. Twenty-five years ago I crossed by Union Pacific Railroad and I again decided there would never be a quicker or better way. It took three days. Today I am crossing by airplane. I won't say there will never be a quicker or better method. This trip, if all the flying hours were put together, would have taken less than a day. And I wonder what will be the quickest and best way twenty-five years in the future. Probably half an hour will be all the time required.

"I wish I could stay here that long and see it. I am ninety-four years old now, and sound as a dollar.

"The airplane is all right and so is the train, but for downright good time and fun, give me the bull team every time."

Gould Litigation Costs Sum Of $10,000 Per Day

Most Expensive Suit Ever Known Will Run Into Millions Before It Comes To An End

New York, Oct. 7.—The hourly cost of the accounting suit in the $82,000,000 estate of Jay Gould is $2,500, or $10,000 for each four-hour day of the proceedings before Referee James A. O'Gorman. It was estimated yesterday by William Wallace, counsel for the estate of George J. Gould. It is the most expensive private litigation ever known in any country in the world. Mr. Wallace said. Although it is impossible to estimate its total cost, Mr. Wallace said it would eventually run into the millions.

The Court has already set $2,000,000 aside from the estate of George J. Gould to defray his share of the trial expense, and Mr. Wallace said he believed that the $10,000 a day estimate understated the actual expense. This figure, he explained, covers the fees of all of the counsel, the allowance for Referee O'Gorman and the cost of stenography and printing.

The suit was instituted in July, 1916, and its end is not yet even in sight. It is the only legal proceedings known in the history of jurisprudence. Mr. Wallace said, in which depositions have been taken continuously from two persons for approximately six years, one of them—George J. Gould—dying before his testimony had been completed. The examination of George and Edwin, before trial, began in April, 1917. The lawyers have finished with Edwin, but still were seeking information from his brother when he died, May 16, 1923.

WARNS AGAINST WASTING TIME

his personal account and would have made losses if he hadn't delivered securities belonging to the estate."

Edwin said that he didn't. He first knew, he testified, that George was mingling estate funds with his personal account in August, 1916.

By means of an intricate patchwork of excerpts from the testimony of both George and Edwin, Mr. Wallace presented the history of the sale by George in 1909 of 225,868 shares of Western Union stock to the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. Robert Windsor of Boston appeared as the buyer and it was not until six months afterward that it became publicly known that the American Telephone & Telegraph Company was the actual purchaser and that, through the transaction, it had obtained the control of the Western Union which it holds today.

DEVALUED 225,868 SHARES
George Gould delivered 225,868 shares of Western Union, in all, it developed yesterday. Of this number, 210,028 belonged to the Jay Gould estate and the balance to himself, personally, and to the other executors and trustees. The price received was $75 a share, plus a bonus of $10 on each share, which was considerably above what was then the market quotation.

T. L. Chadbourne Jr. acted as the broker through whom the sale was effected and Mr. Windsor paid him a commission of $8.50 a share. Mr. Chadbourne, according to the testimony, received $801,031 under this arrangement, retaining $125,000 as a commission and turning the balance of $676,031 over to George as his commission.

It was not until after the present suit was started that George Gould paid the money over to the estate, having held it from 1909 to 1917. It was brought out that his action in paying it into the estate followed the receipt by him of a letter from Mr. Chadbourne in which the latter advised such a course. George offered at the time to pay interest at 4 percent. The present dispute arises from the fact that the attorneys for his father's estate demand 6 percent.

Mr. Wallace explained George

Gould's action in retaining the commission by saying that, during his father's lifetime, he had been in this habit of selling securities for his father, who always allowed him a commission. He apparently considered, Mr. Wallace said, "whether right or wrong," that he had the same right to a commission on sales in behalf of the estate.

At his examination before trial George made no attempt to disprove the allegations that he had burned his private books and papers prior to 1912. From the evidence presented yesterday, additional details concerning their destruction were spread upon the records.

HAD THE OLD PAPERS MOVED
George said that when he decided to move his offices from 165 Broadway and take smaller quarters, because he intended being far less active in railroad matters in the future, he decided to "get rid of some of the old paper that had accumulated."

"I thought they would be of no further value," George testified, "and destroyed my private records together with a lot of old letters."

"Did you destroy any of the estate records?" he was asked.

"No."

Mr. Gould described how he had the personal accounts and letters

Prosperity In Large Chunks Seen For P. I.

Prosperity in large chunks is the outlook for the Philippines for the coming year in the opinion of business men of the islands, according to Mr. E. M. Shelton, hemp man of Manila, enroute to Kobe on the President Wilson, Pacific Mail liner, which arrived yesterday.

Hemp, of which the Philippines has a world monopoly, has been higher in price in the last few months than for the last three years, Mr. Shelton said. Lower prices were noted last week on the lower grades but this is tending to increase production.

The peso is at a premium over the gold dollar in the Philippines because of heavy exports of sugar, hemp, copra and other products to the United States, Mr. Shelton said.

Sugar centrals have begun to grind the season's crop. This will bring much money into the islands and have a tendency to hasten collections which have been slow for several months.

European interests are sustaining copra prices. Sales of the 1924 tobacco crop of Isabela tobacco are better than last year's returns and promise greater next year with the tobacco interests gradually becoming vitally interested in producing better Philippine tobacco.

Import markets for piece goods and automobiles are improved with trucks moving in good shape.

Mr. Shelton has been in the Philippines three years, connected with Babcock and Templeton.

Mr. A. M. Simpson, manager of the Honolulu Iron Works of Manila, enroute to Honolulu, echoes Mr. Shelton's statements. The Honolulu Iron Works has contracted for several additions to sugar centrals in the Philippines this year, an indication of bumper crops expected.

SOVIET CURSES BRITAIN WHILE BEGGING LOAN

Bolshevist Says About £500,000,000 Would Be Acceptable

Riga, Oct. 11.—In a speech to the League of Young Communists, Kamenef, after the usual violent denunciations of the "baseness" of Macdonald and other public men in England, declared that Great Britain's diplomatic officials were feverishly working, both within and outside Soviet Russia, to prejudice the soviet's international relations.

"Everywhere," he said, "we have traces of their activity. In Afghanistan they incited armed forces against the Ameer because he was friendly toward us. In Persia they bribe tribes into insurrection; they have roused hostile Kurds near Turkey's frontiers; their activity has influenced events in China; they incited the Georgians into an attempted insurrection, and something is preparing on our European frontiers, where soon we may expect Petura and Balakhovitch to resume their activities."

CURSES BRITAIN, BUT WANTS A LOAN

In the same breath, while still cursing Great Britain, Kamenef expressed eagerness to receive a British loan, stating that "we have a plan for using such a loan, and although the London treaty does not mention the amount, we could conveniently place 500 millions of British money, but to receive this we must promise to use part of it for compensating the ex-bondholders. If we do not receive the money, I confess that our position will be difficult."

In view of the possibility that the Anglo-Soviet treaty may not be ratified, Moscow is attempting new combinations, including the conclusion of a number of separate agreements under which the soviet will have well-placed agents for possible Balkan developments. In connection with the recent agreement with Hungary, the soviet press publishes an interview with the notorious Hungarian communist, Bela Kun, whom Moscow sent to Hungary as the head of the short-lived communist dictatorship in 1919 and who, after its collapse, fled to Russia, where he earned the nickname of "Bloodhound" by massacring Russian ex-officers in the Crimea literally in thousands.

HUNGARY DRAWN TOWARD THE SOVIET

Bela Kun states that the re-union of relations with the Hungarian government is of the greatest political importance, especially in connection with prevailing conditions in the Balkans. Hungary feels drawn toward the soviet, especially since the soviet's declaration in Vienna about the rights of nationalities, "because millions of Hungarians are now subjected to the heavy yoke of Czechoslovakia, Yugo-Slavia and Rumania; therefore, Hungarian nationalists desire the soviet's strong friendship."

These and other expressions of Bela Kun confirm the soviet government's intention to use the agreement with Hungary as an instrument against Rumania.

Tchitcherin has officially denounced the readiness of the league of nations to intercede for peace with Georgia as "unqualifiable insolence."

Million Gold Dollars Of Groundnut Kernels Shipped To U.S. Last Year

Tsingtao The Principal Point Of Shipment For A Class Of Business Which The Germans Developed

By Geo. W. Misener

What in the southern states of America is called the peanut but, and in the north the peanut, is known among the British as the groundnut, and as the word used by most Continental nations has the same meaning (in translation) as the British, this term will be applied in this article, following also the terminology used in the Chinese customs statistics.

GERMANS DEVELOPED THE BUSINESS

This is one of the exports from China which the Germans were instrumental in developing. Up until the European war, by far the greater export of this article was in German hands, shipments being so heavy from the port of Tsingtao that they exceeded those from all the other ports in China combined. It is the common impression that German merchants in China before the European war were particularly intent on developing a purely German trade, that is, making shipments to their own home-land. The fact is, however, otherwise, and statistics show that not only in this article, but also in straw-braid, which the Germans developed simultaneously with the groundnut business, the best customers of the Germans were the French, the exports from Tsingtao to French ports being greater than to German ports, or to any other ports in the world.

U. S. DUTY FOUR CENTS PER POUND

Ten years ago the exports to the United States of either groundnuts in the shell or as kernels was inconsequential. During recent years, however, the trade in kernels to the United States has developed to quite handsome proportions despite the fact that there is a duty at present of four gold cents per pound on them. Last year more than a million gold dollars worth of groundnut kernels were sent to the United States from China, about forty times as many as a year previously and about twenty times as many as two years previously. In addition to the some export of groundnuts in the shell to the U. S. A., but the duty of three cents a pound, and the bulky nature of this cargo makes business almost impossible. There was, however, a business to America of groundnuts of over a hundred thousand tons, mostly to points in the Western part of the United States, far removed from the home sources of supply.

MILLION DOLLARS OF OIL TO U. S. A.

In addition to the million dollars worth of groundnut kernels that were sent to the United States last year another million dollars worth of oil expressed from groundnuts was sent to American ports during the year 1923. This oil like the kernels must bear a duty of four cents a pound.

Up until several years ago Japanese exporters—that is Japanese in Japan—handled considerable of this groundnut business to America, the shipments first going to Japan, where they were graded, the best qualities being sent on to America as "Japanese" groundnuts. In recent years, however, the exporting houses here in China have become more and more in the grades of their product, and very little of the former transshipment business in Japan remains.

It is only in recent years that the Chinese customs statistics have separated the items "groundnut kernels" and "groundnuts in the shell," but curiously enough where as Tsingtao is by far the principal port of export for the kernels, Tientsin exports considerably more of the groundnuts in the shell than Tsingtao does. The total export to foreign countries of groundnuts in the shell is not nearly so great as the business in the kernels, last year's exports of the former being roughly four million tons as against the latter of eight million tons. In both varieties the exports to foreign countries have shown a steady increase in recent years.

The two principal purchasers of Chinese groundnuts in the shell at present are France and Great Britain, where in addition to their being used whole in the usual roasted condition as food, the oil is very largely used in the manufacture of margarine. These two countries also take almost as many groundnut kernels as does the United States. Last year Spain made a spectacular entrance into this trade, taking over a million tons worth, as against half a million the year before and a few thousand tons worth two years previously.

In the United States, the kernels are used to a large extent in the manufacture of confectionery, are ground and converted into butter, and to a certain extent also are used for extracting the oil.

SEES ROSEATE FUTURE IN U. S. COPPER TRADE

Foundation Has Been Laid For Extended Period Of Prosperity

Despite the pessimism in the American copper trade at the present time, due to low prices and increased production, the outlook for the industry is bright, in the opinion of Hamilton M. Brush, Vice President and manager of the sales department of the American Smelting and Refining Company, the largest of the Guggenheim properties. Mr. Brush expects Germany to take large quantities of copper in the future. German buying he believes will furnish the backbone of the market as it will represent additional consumption rather than simply replacement of export business from one country to another. The low prices for the red metal over the last few years, he says, has resulted in the laying of a foundation for an extended period of prosperity.

Mr. Brush who is recognised as an authority on copper trade conditions, writing in the Daily Metal Reporter, says:

"It seems to me the future of copper is most rosy and I base my belief not on a study of statistics, but on several major facts which are briefly: 1. Copper is a prime essential in electrical development and electrical development means lower cost of production and the saving of manpower whether used in substitution of coal or for the more general distribution of power, light and heat. The world is coming to demand such saving both from necessity and choice.

"2. The extended period of low prices through which we have gone for some six years past has largely increased the demand for copper and has shown the ultimate consumer all over the world the advantages which copper and brass

Declared Exports From Shanghai To U. S. A.

The following table issued by Edwin S. Cunningham, American Consul-General, Shanghai, China, furnishes information concerning declared exports from Shanghai, China, to the United States during the month of October, 1924.

The value of the declared exports from Shanghai, China, to the United States during October, 1924 was $2,153,297, and for the first ten months of 1924 $30,928,913, in United States Currency.

The principal articles exported to the United States from Shanghai, China, during the month of October, 1924, and the values thereof, were as follows:

have over cheaper and less permanent metals; this advantage is so great that a moderate increase in the price of copper will not tend to discourage its use on the part of those people who have learned its advantages. A man who has once spent several thousands of dollars in replacing out-rusty iron pipes in his house to be replaced by several hundreds of dollars worth of new pipe will not repeat his mistake if he is wise.

"3. The consumption of copper has been increasing more rapidly than the total capacity for producing copper and the producing companies are beginning to realise that a stock of a few hundred million pounds of copper, which looks big when put on paper, is not only far from being a serious burden but is an absolute essential backlog to the proper conduct of the business. A very slight further increase in the consumption will tip the scales the other way, giving the producers sufficient courage to ask a reasonable price for their metal.

"I personally believe that the low prices of the last few years, although trying in the extreme to some of the miners while they lasted, have been far from disastrous to the industry, but rather they have laid the foundation for an extended period of prosperity. The one condition which could hurt the industry in any vital way would be a period of abnormally high prices. Fortunately, the whole tendency of the times is against such a period, and I therefore look forward with confidence to the future of copper over the next few years."

Regarding the expected demand from Germany, Mr. Brush says: "I believe Germany has a wonderfully efficient plant for the fabrication of copper products, and I further believe her people are prepared to work industriously and efficiently not only in this line, but in all lines; that being the case, Germany will appear in the statistics as a very large taker of copper, which she will use at first to put into manufactured form for export in competition with the rest of the world's goods and later as her own prosperity increases she will take increasingly large quantities of copper for strictly domestic use. This latter use she will govern most, as it will be an additional consumption of copper and will not represent simply a replacement of export business from one country to another.

"The reason why Europe has not increased her consumption of copper to the same extent as the United States is because her people are not living on the same plane as the people of the United States. If every fifth person in Europe—to say nothing of Asia—drove their own automobile, and if the same percentage of homes were equipped with telephones, electric lights and labor-saving electrical appliances, the consumption of copper in Europe would be the same as it is here. What we most hope for, therefore, is a general increase in the scale of living in the rest of the world which will automatically largely increase the ultimate consumption of copper.

Anglo-Saxon Solidarity On The Russian Question

IN yesterday's issue of The China Press appeared an article dealing with the possible effect which the election of President Coolidge and the return of the conservative Republican party to power in America may have upon the question of Soviet Russia.

We can imagine that the Republican victory in America this week, aroused even less enthusiasm than did the news of the Conservative victory in Great Britain arouse in Moscow a few days earlier. The election of conservative governments in America and Britain from the standpoint of Moscow can mean but one thing and that is the closing of the world's reservoirs of free capital to Russia until the leaders of that land return to sanity.

Instead of concentrating their attention upon the rehabilitation of Russia, the leaders of Moscow have concentrated their attention upon the matter of converting the world to their system of communism. In other words they considered political propaganda to be of greater importance than economic development. When the Labor government came into power in Great Britain, Moscow thought it saw its great opportunity. The great debt which Russia owed Britain was to be cancelled by a charge against Britain for alleged assistance rendered the Whites in the various counter-revolutions. Then with the slate wiped clean, the vast reservoir of British capital was to be opened up for the Soviet and with that fund the campaign against America was to be started.

But it didn't work out that way. Regardless of what the British Labor party had in mind in respect to its contemplated loan to Moscow, everything went to smash in the recent election. Now America has followed suit with a conservative government and Moscow must be reading the returns with mixed feelings.

Both America and Britain—and Japan—ultimately will recognise Russia, but the final settlement will have to be on the sound conditions of economic principles which have been built up through the ages. In other words debts made in good faith by governments must be paid. Russia owes the United States something like $750,000,000. Russia is in a deplorable condition from the standpoint of internal economic and industrial conditions and must have new capital. In order to obtain new capital, the old debt will have to be paid at once or funded over a long period for the simple reason that as long as the government debt is in default, no one can have any confidence in purchasing new Russian bonds. In both America and Britain governments have no right, except in war time, to vote loans without the consent of the people. Therefore any money which Russia may borrow in the future will have to be through the avenues of private banks and the banks in turn must sell bonds to the investing public. Obviously no bonds can be sold where there is no public confidence, and the only way in which Russia can create confidence is through an honest effort to pay her debts and get back to work.

To put it in simple terms the leaders of Moscow have got to get back to economic sanity. As with the individual, so with the nation. The only way to prosperity and independence is through hard work and attention to certain simple rules as old as the world but as well known to primitive man as to the most highly civilised.

Sir John Jordan's Speech

THERE is one passage in Sir John Jordan's address at the annual dinner of the China Association in London, reported in another column today, which merits attention. Referring to the influence of Russia on the present Chinese situation, the speaker gave expression to a thought that must have occurred to many thinking persons when he emphasised the fact that a disquieting feature of the situation is the determined effort of M. Karakhan and a section of the younger Chinese to undermine the treaty rights of Britain and other Powers. Sir John considers it impossible that M. Karakhan should participate in the deliberations of the Diplomatic Body in Peking. The Russian Treaty of 1924 and the Treaties of the other Powers are as far apart as the Poles, says Sir John, giving no common ground for deliberation.

The former British Minister to China has every ground for entertaining serious misgiving in respect to M. Karakhan. Indeed, so far as the Diplomatic Body in Peking is concerned, the advent of M. Karakhan in Peking must be as great and baffling an enigma to itself as the extraordinary situation created as an aftermath of the recent civil war in China. He indeed is the novel factor in the situation. Over two years ago, Wu Pei-fu defeated Chang Tso-lin, as it seemed, decisively, but nothing came of his victory except a new series of intrigues in Peking, differing in no respect from those that had gone before. When Peking concluded this year a treaty with the Soviet Government, including an agreement concerning the Chinese Eastern Railway, Chang Tso-lin, it will be remembered, withheld his consent. He was in effective control of the Railway and he wished to make his own terms. The special claims of Chang Tso-lin have apparently now been satisfied, because he has since concluded a separate agreement with the Soviet Government. Thus the singular result was brought about that Peking and Mukden, which did not recognise each other, yet treated with a third party, the Russian Soviet, about the same subject—the Chinese Eastern Railway. The world should not be surprised if, at some future time, complications should arise which might tax the resources even of the wily Soviet and put a considerable strain on Chinese officialdom's genius for finesse.

It is perhaps a healthy sign, amid the welter of Chinese politics, that American and European newspapers are now disposed to devote a little more attention to the Chinese question than they have hitherto been inclined to do, and with the British and American elections now out of the way, we may anticipate still greater interest in the affairs of this distracted land, in which the whole world is deeply interested. It is inconceivable that the rest of the world can prosper if China remains backward and unprogressive. There are some who affect to discern in Marshal Chang Tso-lin the "strong man" of China. These are the people who lauded Yuan Shih-kai as the savior of China until he assumed the imperial yellow which contributed to his political downfall and premature demise. The London Times effectively summed up the situation recently when it stated:

"It is perhaps a curious coincidence that in the present arrangement of pieces on the Chinese chess-board Chang Tso-lin in the North is in league with that sorely-tried but still unwearied politician Sun Yat-sen, of Canton, in the turbulent South. Sun Yat-sen happens to be at this moment the special favorite of the Soviet Government in China, perhaps through no serious fault of his own. For his sake meetings have been held all over Russia, and the market-women of Kiev have been made to pass vehement resolutions against Mr. MacDonald and other Imperialists and capitalists who are supposed to be drowning in blood the liberties of various remote individuals with unpardonable names. It is hard to say what this outburst of Soviet agitation on the Chinese question really means. At any rate as things now stand, the Bolsheviks are taking an active part in the intricate maneuvers of the Tsuchuns and politicians of China, and their support, for what it may be worth, is given, in varying gradations of pressure, to the group who are attacking, or want to attack, the present rulers of Peking."

Sir John Jordan's fears relative to Bolshevik influence in China are not idle. They are well founded and are grounded in first hand knowledge and experience acquired through a lifetime spent in China in the service of the British Empire. The Bolsheviks need watching no less than China's scheming militarists. The people of China are beset by enemies both within and without, and it is encouraging to realise that the West is again giving the situation out here a little attention.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

CHINA'S REMINDER
(New York Outlook)

The crisis in China is the Celestial Republic's way of reminding the Western world that there are also problems of reconstruction in the Far East.

The struggle for the control of Shanghai, the New York of China, could not be better chosen to accomplish this end. Year after year in the perennial battle for self-aggrandisement characterising the "civil war" in Cathay, the commercial interests of the West have been more and more jeopardised. The "inferior" trade, upon which the economic promise of China rests, has become more and more difficult to expand. This commercial metropolis of China, the gateway of international trade, under siege dramatises all of the difficulties under which 400,000,000 people in the East are living during this period of national transition.

The immediate struggle centers about the efforts of General Lu Yung-hsiang, "tuchun" or military governor of Chekiang Province, to prevent General Chi Shieh-yuan, controlling Kiangsu, from returning the Shanghai district to Peking's allegiance. Since 1919 this key to the Yangtze delta has been under control of the master of Chekiang. It has meant a wealthy community back of Tuchun Lu. Apart from business, it is a political center of outstanding importance; the acropolis of internationality, the seat of the Foreign Settlement to plot anew. Behind it the Pootung flows to the sea at the estuary of the Yangtze; the Woosung Forts guard China's cable communication, as well as trade, Washington Conference, much of these military maneuvers would be impossible. It is melancholy satisfaction to note that the United States and Great Britain are the nations least offending in his respect against the letter and the spirit of the Far Eastern treaties.

If the outcome of the battle for Shanghai, even with the costs of a wider conflict discounted, could lead toward China's stabilisation, much would be for-

How Nature Shapes Mountains

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

This from a reader in Brooklyn: "My little group enjoy your wonderful articles, and look for them daily. One subject that we have discussed we feel compelled to write to you about. What caused the mountains to come to a peak? Some that we have seen up New Hampshire way are almost perfect, and without a break in their sides. It has us guessing."

So unusual a question, showing thoughtful observation of nature, deserves an answer, or at least an attempt at an answer.

Evidently my correspondent and his family have been taking a Summer vacation, or an outing, among the charming scenes of New England and particularly in the marvellous region of the "White Hills." These beautiful mountains contain many remarkable eminences that "come to a peak" in a most striking manner. Some of them are almost perfect cones, shaped by nature's hand. The peak of Kearsarge, whose name was borne proudly by one of the most successful of American warships, is an example of this regularity of form. The Percy Peaks, in the northern part of the range, are lofty and symmetrical domes of rock, whose sides seem almost as difficult to climb as would be those of the dome of a great cathedral, like St. Peter's or St. Paul's. And there are dozens of less conspicuous summits that present a similar outline, surmounted either by a sharp point, or a smoothly rounded apex.

If the White Mountains were of volcanic origin these forms would be a natural consequence of their mode of formation, for the material cast up from the central mouth of the volcano tends to shape itself into either a cone, or a more or less broadened dome, according to the nature of the eruptions. But there is also a large and more or less conspicuous crater, usually situated near the top, which gives a characteristic look to volcanic peaks. But nothing of this kind is found in New Hampshire. On the contrary, the mountains there are composed mostly of granite and other massive rock. They have been uplifted by geologic forces straining and corrugating given the leaders of hapless Cathay in their insensate fight for personal power. A change in masters seems the most in sight. If foreign interests suffer, more severely, the blundering policy of the Powers is chiefly responsible for trade losses and business upsets. The commercial greed of the last half century has done its part in making China the world problem which she is today in spite of Washington Conferences and Pacific pacts.

portions of the crust of the planet. The latest speculative views on this subject would probably place these mountains among those which have been created by the effects of "isostasy"—a new term used to describe a kind of compensatory action by which the partially plastic mass of the earth's interior thrusts up material from below, at certain points, to keep the balance, when neighboring parts are thrust downward by pressure from above. Such pressure is supposed to have been exerted in the Glacial Ages by the vast accumulations of the northern part of North America.

But, whatever the cause may have been that uplifted the material forming the White mountains, the external forms which they now present are due to the wearing away of the rocks by hundreds of thousands, or millions, of years of "weathering." The rocks are not all of equal hardness and tenacity, and the softer kinds, or those broken up by frost and other natural agencies, are swept down into the valleys by rains, and, more slowly, by gravity alone, acting upon particles lying on steep slopes. Irregular masses with sharp projections, precipices, salients, and steep walled buttresses, such as might be formed by a great upheaval, or other movement of the earth's crust, would be worn down in the course of time into pyramids and domes. All very ancient mountains are much worn down and smoothed off in outline. Of some only the "roots" remain. A striking contrast to this is found on the moon, where, owing to the absence of atmospheric forces, gravity acts alone upon the mountain masses, and since there is little or no water on the moon, the action of frost, so effective in breaking and disintegrating terrestrial rocks, is lacking there, to pry open the clefts and so put the cliffs and crags at the mercy of the leveling force of gravity. In consequence, as a look through a telescope would show you, the lunar mountains never show the smooth and regular geometrical shapes, so frequent on the earth, but are all rugged precipitous, and unsymmetrical.

What of Your Future—Is it Hopeful or Hopeless?

When you think of your future does it appear to you hopeless or hopeful?

Do you see yourself in good health or as a helpless invalid?

Do you see yourself a failure and a dependent upon others for a livelihood?

In other words, are your thoughts of the future gloomy and depressing?

You are not obliged to entertain such thoughts, you know, and the longer you encourage such musings the harder for your thoughts to travel in more cheerful channels.

What do you think today has more to do with your future than you realize.

If despair holds your thoughts now your despondent moods will hinder your feeble efforts to improve or counterbalance the conditions you fear.

Why look upon the future as a formidable giant with jaws open to crush you when a cheerful attitude might counteract even disease?

Why poison yourself physically and mentally when you might tone your whole system with wholesome hopefulness and possibly ward off trouble?

It is not what we make it so much as how we take it. See the difference?

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

Pearls of Many Colors Are in Fashion and There Are New Fads in Earrings and Necklaces

She who bobs her hair must leave earrings behind; this is the opinion of many critics of women's dress. To these observers there is something incongruous in the combination of short locks and decorated ear lobes. One might as well eat green peas with cornbeef, and cabbage with lamb chops, sauce tartare with boiled beef, and horse-radish sauce with fried scallops.

Still there are lots of women who believe in eating their cake and having it, too; at least in the matter of dress. They like earrings and they like bobbed hair; and they don't intend to choose between them. So they wear both.

Interestingly enough, however, in fashionable Long Island society, whose recent important diversion was the entertainment of the Prince of Wales, earrings seem to have passed out of favor, at least for evening.

Meanwhile the earring fad rages in Paris, though undoubtedly there, as here, the enthusiasm of the woman of real smartness has abated somewhat. Possibly the prevalence of bobbed or shingled hair has had something to do with this.

Among the necklaces quite the smartest consist of the choker with a tassel at the front. The really smart and daring thing to do, however, is to wear this necklace with the tassel hanging down the back. Pearls and sapphires and pearls and emeralds are combinations unchallenged still.

There are pearls and pearls in favor at the present, you know. Possibly the newest shade is the new rose-mauve, though black pearls are still in favor, as are gunmetal and bronze-toned pearls. A double string of pearls may be worn hanging from one earring to the other—somehow suggesting the bewilderment of some "heavenly idol"—but quite effective still.

Quite the newest jewelry idea from Paris is the double-headed pin which is intended to fasten the high choker collar. With it are earrings exactly matching the head of the pin.

Pearl earrings are made with pearls on either side of the lobe of the ear, and there are bracelets considerably wider than handcuffs made in barbaric looking enamel-decorated gold.

New things in necklaces and bracelets and new ways of wearing them.

WEDNESDAY'S TASKS

The old-time housewife remembered Wednesday usually as a day when she sighed with relief as she woke with the thought that the laundry work was out of the way. Only sometimes it wasn't. Starched plique dresses, starched duck skirts, heavy damask tableclothes could not be done hastily, and sometimes the first hour or so of Wednesday had to be devoted to the final disposition of the ironing.

In the household where Tuesday is the maid's day out, where Friday is general cleaning day, and Saturday is devoted to baking and extra cooking, Wednesday is a sort of in-between day when there is a little more time to spare. In some households different Wednesdays are spent differently. Alternate Wednesdays are used for cleaning silver. Certain Wednesdays are devoted to special tasks upstairs, polishing metal in the bathrooms, or something of that sort.

In some households Wednesday is the usual time for company to dinner, and certain hours of the morning are used for making preparations for specially elaborate dishes.

In the maidless household—where there is no regular weekly visitation from the cleaning woman—it is often a good plan to have two weekly cleaning days, or rather half days. Then Wednesday and Saturday are well chosen. Bathrooms and bedrooms may be done Wednesday, while halls and living rooms may be done later.

Where it is possible to arrange a very light day on Wednesday the plan of giving up Wednesday to dressmaking and sewing is a good one. I know one maidless household where it is the custom to dine out on Wednesday. This gives the usually busy housewife an opportunity to "take Wednesday off." It is the one evening in the week when there are no dishes at night.

Finds Modern New York Safe From Earthquakes

The recent prediction that the skyscrapers of Manhattan by their weight will cause an earthquake that will smash New York City is ridiculed by Dr. Chester A. Reeds, Associate Curator of Geology of the American Museum of Natural History and seismologist for that institution.

"As one versed in the rocks underlying our great cities, I find in the structure of the rocks of New York City no actual basis for such an assumption," he says. "To allay any uncertainties or apprehensions on this subject, I may say that here in New York the prediction is regarded as more interesting than important by those competent to know. The rocks of Manhattan Island are of the same nature and age and have gone through the same long conditioning processes to insure the city against earthquake as those about Philadelphia.

"The rocks, their structure, their relative age and the mountain-making movements that are at work in certain areas have much to do with the likelihood of an earthquake developing in a given district. There are thousands of rocks of various kinds scattered through the surface portion of the earth, but they are not all of the same age, thickness, hardness or tensile strength. They are variable in their extent, too, for each has a separate origin. If the rocks of the geological column, which are scattered, were piled one on top of the other in the order of their deposition, they would make a stack about sixty miles high.

BEDROCK OF MANHATTAN

"The bedrock of Manhattan Island consists primarily of one kind of rock, which is known to geologists as the Manhattan schist. No fossil forms have been found in it. It is very ancient, being one of the oldest rocks in the North American Continent. It was originally of sedimentary origin but during various and very distant periods of mountain building which affected this region, it was so folded and flexed that the original character of the rock was almost entirely changed. As it appears today it is a very durable and deep-seated rock with many contortions in it, but like all rocks, its upper surface is being worn away slowly but surely by the atmospheric elements. It is also being extensively tunneled and blasted away by man.

"Another old series of rocks, but much younger than the Manhattan Island rocks, extends from the Hudson River westward to the New Jersey Highlands. They consist of a thick series of reddish brown sandstones, shales and conglomerates called the Newark group. These sedimentary rocks were deposited in a trough, or graben, with faulted margins which extended southward from the Hudson River across Central New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland into Southern Virginia.

"During the period of deposition of these red rocks, which must have been some ten millions of years ago, the region was presumably high and arid. Ripple marks, mud cracks, rain drop impressions and footprints of reptiles are common, especially in the shale beds and indicate flood plain and shallow water deposition. In all probability a major stream with lateral tributaries occupied the depression. Fossil fishes and a small crustacean, Estheria oxata, have also been found in sediment deposited in lakes of that period. The fossil remains in these beds indicate the Triassic age, the initial period of the Mesozoic era, sometimes called the Age of Reptiles.

LAVA SHEETS IN JERSEY

"In the vicinity of Paterson, N. J., three successive lava flows which were extruded during the deposition of the Newark beds have been subsequently faulted, fixed and tilted into their present position. Since that event erosion has removed great thicknesses of the red beds and the upturned edges of the lava sheets are now exposed as resistant ridges known as the First and Second Watchung Mountains and Hook Mountain.

"The Palisade rock is also a great sheet of lava which was extruded among the lower strata of the Newark group at the close of the deposition of those beds of rock millions of years ago. It extends from Staten Island northward along the west bank of the Hudson River to Haverstraw. At its southern extremity it is practically at sea level, while forty-five miles north it is 800 feet higher. Throughout most of its extent it presents an escarpment of high cliffs with vertical columns of rocks which were developed slowly during the cooling stages and which suggests the name Palisades.

"Another series of stratified rocks which rest upon the slightly beveled surface of the Newark group and upon the crystalline basal complex in Staten Island and Long Island extends southwest in New Jersey toward Camden and Philadelphia. They are about 1,500 feet thick and consist primarily of marine clays, marls and sands of the cretaceous period, which embraces the closing stage of the Age of Reptiles.

"In addition to the crystalline basal complex which is extensively exposed on Manhattan Island, in Westchester County and the Newark and Cretaceous series in New Jersey, there are extensive surface deposits in the New York City district of glacial drift, a heterogeneous mixture of boulders, sand, clay and gravel which was left by the ice of the last continental glacier. These glacial deposits vary from nothing to a few hundred feet in thickness. These four principal rock groups of different ages found in and about New York City are well adjusted toward one another.

"CRUST 60 MILES IN THICKNESS
"Together they form a solid crust without caverns or subterranean holes, some 60 miles or more in thickness, and strong enough to support any amount of weight of structures that man may be able to place thereon. Furthermore there is not the slightest possibility that oil or gas will be found in the rocks underlying New York City at shallow or at great depths.

"In regard to the weight of the buildings of New York City, I must not fail to mention that the load of ice which stood over the site of New York City and which was thousands of feet thick, was far greater than the weight of the higher buildings which man has placed on Manhattan Island. Although the weight of the ice may have repressed the land some two and one-half feet per mile to the northward some 25,000 years ago, it apparently produced no earthquakes. At least there are no visible signs of them in this region. The extensive ice load, coming late in geologic time, may be regarded as one of the many factors that compressed the rocks and otherwise conditioned the New York City district against the occurrence of earthquakes.

"At the present time earthquakes which produce fear and are of great power are of frequent occurrence about the borders of the Pacific Ocean and in the Mediterranean region. In those regions mountains are slowly rising on the landward side, while in the sea great troughs or deeps are in process of formation; thus while some blocks of the earth's surface are being depressed others are being uplifted. The whole circum-Pacific zone is thus in an unstable condition. It is apparently quiet between earth-come great enough the earthquake occurs.

"The rocks of the earth's crust and the interior are so compact generally that they have the rigidity of tool steel. Earthquake waves generated by distant earthquakes are transmitted through the earth, even through the rocks underlying New York City, but the city need not anticipate a nearby earthquake even though the seismograph detects them, for their source is far away.

"Throughout millions of years the rocks under the city and the adjacent ones have been so adjusted with reference to one another that the earth stresses and strains which are so active in young mountain regions that they cause earthquakes not manifested here. The basal rocks of the New York-Philadelphia district are so old and well settled that they react to the earth's strains and stresses as one homogeneous mass. To the geologist, the region is an adjusted or compensated one and not subject to earthquakes, no matter how many skyscrapers are built thereon. Thus, the fear of earthquakes in New York need not disturb our citizens."

quakes, but the forces that build young mountains are at work at all times, and as soon as the accumulating stresses have be-

Marriage By Choice Is Aim Of New Japan Cult

Tokio, Oct. 23.—A revolutionary change in the marriage customs of Japan is proposed as the basis of the Kokumin Kekkon Hodokai.
This is the People's Society for Matrimonial Aid. Its members want the young men and young women of the new Japan to choose their own mates.

When one muddles in affairs of the heart, he is in dangerous waters. Yet that is the aim in life of this organisation. Brave men have died for a cause less worthy. The Society was founded by a few daring persons who believe society as a whole is bettered if the family, its basis, is composed of parents who have joined together for life because of a mutual attachment, or love, for one another.

So on November 15, last they foregathered and ruled that an organised movement against the old customs of Nippon would avail most. The result was the Kokumin Kekkon Hodokai, and its members now number above 100. They have been holding socials and entertainments for those who desire to meet the eligible young lady or youth.

FIVE COUPLES MARRY

Proudly they point to the record of this year's work. For five couples have married the mate of their own choice and their marital ships of state so far have navigated without noticeable turbulence.

Mr. Hampei Nagao, chairman of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. and former head of the Tokio Electric Bureau, is president of the Society. Mr.
Motomichi Miwada, president of the Miwada Girl's High School, is vice-president. They have, you see, some important personages back of the movement.

For this reason no little interest has attached to their efforts to replace the conventional go-between system of marriage. As it is now, the parents of the bride and the groom make all the arrangements and often the two never meet until they are betrothed.

The board of directors of the Society is composed of such men as Mr. Ryutaro Nagai, parliamentary councillor to the Foreign Minister, Mrs. Fumiko Kawamura,

Woman Explorer Sails
for African Trip.

Mrs. D. J. Akeley, famous African explorer, has sailed from New York for another tour of exploration into Darkest Africa, on which she will be engaged a year under the auspices of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Museum of Art. She will make camera studies of native customs and particularly of baby life among the Central African tribes.

Mr. Ichitaro Kishimoto, one of the members of the board of directors, is directly in charge of the business of the Society.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Every month the members have a social affair of some sort or other. They meet at the Okuma-kaikan, and young men and women members meet and have a chance to decide if anybody present will make a good husband, or a good wife. The directors of the Society supervise the evening's entertainment. The candidates for mates must bring their parents or guardians that they, too, may pass on the eligibility of the proposed other half.

"The defects in the present system of marriage in Japan have become more apparent since the big earthquake," said one of the director in an interview with a representative of The Japan Advertiser. "Continuance of the conventional system is bound to give rise to a problem even more serious than the problem of reconstruction of the Capital."

"As the first step toward a solution of the problem, we propose to give an opportunity of young men and women to meet and choose for themselves. We will extend our assistance to them to get married on the basis of their own judgment."

"The conventional marriage custom is more or less like obtaining wives or husbands by drawing lots. There has been little done through matrimonial bureaus, also, and we desire to abolish them and the old order and establish a rational system of marriage by choice."

Qualifications for entrance to the People's Society for Matrimonial Aid include information concerning social standing, health, that the candidates be single, submitting of photographs and of a family record. The officials look into the information obtained in this way, to verify it.

A payment of ¥1 is required as a membership fee, and annual dues are ¥20. The money is used for the administrative work of the Society.

PARENTAL SANCTION

Members are required to have the sanction of their parents or other relatives to join the organisation. A blank is given them to fill out, telling whether they have been married before, their age, education and whose sanction they have received to become members.

With this information, the Society know pretty well what sort of a person they have to offer. They also give applicants for membership blanks, to fill out telling what sort of a mate they want. No mistakes, you see, all specifications figured out in advance. Very business like, but you get your own choice in the matter eventually.

There are a few restrictions like this on the free and unfettered romantic love-making of the Western civilisation, but all in all it is considered a vast improvement over the old system.
The members have to bring their parents, or some member of the family, along to socials or entertainments to pass on their choice, but usually that part is easy.

President Coolidge Starts World Series

President Calvin Coolidge is shown above throwing out the first ball in the great series that made the Washington Senators the Champions of the world. Since this picture was taken the Washington team has risen to world baseball supremacy, and Calvin Coolidge has again been elected to the post of Chief Executive of the United States.

at first by the width of a midget's head.

FRISCH RUN DOWN

Frish followed with a double down the right field, sliding into the bag from twenty feet away. On Young's tap to Zachary, Frish was surrounded and run down in a chase. Kelly then came bounding through with a single to center, scoring Young. At this hectic moment Sam Rice slipped through with one of the great plays of the series.

Irish Muesel caught one on the bat of the wood and slashed it on a line straight for the right bleachers. Rice whirled at the crack of the bat to head off the home run. Three feet from the fence he went high in the air and with his back to the stands pulled the ball down with his gloved hand just as it was about to cross the low paling into certain home run territory.

This brilliant catch shut off two runs and brought the hoosier star from George Ade's home town enough applause to last all winter.

HARRIS' BAD BASE-RUNNING

In that same opening canto had base-running by Buck Harris may have cost heavily. After McNeely had walked, Harris forced him at second. Neft with a snap throw then caught Harris ten feet off the bag and Buck was run to sudden death at second base. Sam Rice followed with a long single to right that should have sent the Washington manager on to third if he had still been in action. Kelly then fumbled Goslin's slap down the line, but there were now two out and Joe Judge fanned.

Only another championship tenner catch by the redoubtable Sam Rice saved Zachary again in the third. Lindstrom, who had been robbed of a hit in the first by Bluege, nailed a low liner to right center midway between McNeely and Rice. Here were three bases all ordered and almost delivered when Rice came spinning across like a runaway horse and stopped the ball at top speed just before his knees. As Frish followed with a double, the value of this second great play can be easily understood.

RICE CONTRIBUTES THRILLER

The third Rice contribution to the Zachary cause came in the fifth. With one out, Neft pushed a short pop fly down the right field line just beyond the frantic reach of Joe Judge. Both Judge and Buck Harris made desperate lunges to reach the falling ball when Rice, scooting in from right field, dived between them for his third great catch of the game.

The great uproar of the battle calmed off in the last of the fifth. The stands were rocking for twenty minutes afterward. Peckinpaugh the redoubtable opened with his second hit, a clear and singing wallop. Ruel sacrificed Peck to second. Zachary pumped a grounder to Kelly, and Peck limped to third. McNeely then walked and two runs, one hit, no errors.

Senators—Frish threw out Bluege at first. Peckinpaugh scratched a hit off Lindstrom's glove. Ruel fled out to Muesel. Zachary was a strikeout victim. No runs, one hit, no errors.

THIRD INNING

Giants—Rice took a hit away from Lindstrom with a fine running catch. Frish got another two-base hit to right. Harris threw out Young, Frish going to third. Bluege threw out Kelly and the danger was over. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Senators—McNeely sent up a high one to Jackson. Jackson took Harris' hopper and got him at first. Rice fouled out to Lindstrom. No runs, no hits, no errors.

FOURTH INNING

Giants—Peckinpaugh threw out Muesel. Zachary was using his old slow curve. Wilson singled into right. Jackson hit into a double play, Harris to Peckinpaugh to Judge. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Senators—Young took Goslin's host. Jackson took Judge's slow boater. Jackson threw out Bluege. No runs, no hits, no errors.

FIFTH INNING

Giants—Peckinpaugh took Gowdy's grounder and had him easily at first. Rice robbed Neft of a hit by coming in back of first base and catching the ball near the foul line. Lindstrom went out. Zachary to Judge. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Senators—Peckinpaugh singled into left. Ruel sacrificed. Neft to Kelly. Zachary went out to Kelly, unassisted. Peckinpaugh going to third. McNeely walked. McNeely stole second. Peck blocking third. Peck and McNeely

PLAY BY INNINGS IN FIFTH CONTEST OF WORLD SERIES

(The following is the play by innings, and box score, in the fifth game of the world's series, described in THE CHINA PRESS yesterday).

First Inning

Senators—Lindstrom robbed McNeely of a hit with a leaping catch. Wilson took Harris' long fly. Terry captured Rice's hoist. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning

Senators—Gossin beat out an infield hit. It was Gossin's fifth straight hit, counting yesterday's game. Wilson took Judge's fly. Terry dropped Bluege's fly. Gossin was caught at second. Ruel got a base on balls. Frisch threw out Miller. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning

Senators—Johnson got a single into left and was thrown out trying for a second base. Wilson to Frisch to Terry. McNeely beat out a bunt to Lindstrom, catching the Giants' third baseman flat-footed. Harris scratched a hit to second. Rice popped to Gowdy. Frisch threw out Gossin. No runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning

Senators—Johnson singled off the right field wall. Bluege sacrificed. Bentley to Terry. Jackson threw out Ruel at first. Judge scored on Miller's single to right. Miller tried to stretch it, but was out. Young to Frisch. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning

Senators—Johnson went out. Jackson to Terry. McNeely popped to Terry. Harris went out on strikes. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning

Senators—Rice fanned. Bentley was using a big wide curve and plenty of speed. Gossin drove a home foul into the right field stand. Gossin whiffed. Judge singled sharply past Frisch. Bluege fanned. Bentley retiring the side on strikes. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning

Senators—Ruel walked. Miller went out to Terry. Ruel going to second. Kelly took Johnson's skyscraper. McNeely got a base on balls. Harris died out to Young, who took the ball near the concrete stand. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning

Senators—Frisch threw out to Rice at first on a close play. Gossin got a home run into the right field stand. Gossin's hit tied the record made by Ruth in last year's world's series. Judge rattled a single into right field. Bentley was taken out of the box, being replaced by McQuillan. Frisch threw out Bluege. Judge going to second. Lindstrom threw out Ruel at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning

Senators—Lindstrom batted for Miller. Leibold flied out to Kelly. Tate batted for Jackson. Tate got a base on balls. Taylor ran for Tate. Taylor went to second. It was no steal. McNeely fanned. Harris flied to Wilson. No runs, no hits, no errors.
